Obrigado Brasil!

As part of World Refugee Day, observed around the world on 20 June, and to show gratitude for Brazil’s solidarity towards refugees, the towers of the National Congress in Brasilia were lit up in blue with photos of refugees in Brazil being projected onto the iconic building, in addition to the messages “Obrigado Brasil” and “Brasil #ComOsRefugiados”. The moment also recognized the legal support that refugees found precisely 25 years ago with the Brazilian Refugee Law that protects those who had to leave their homeland due to wars, conflicts, and persecution.

Resistance – The Refugee Journey at Rio Carnival

One of the symbols of Brazilian identity, the Carnival, brings together the entire society into a single celebration. Thus, there would be no greater expression of refugee integration in the Brazilian society than their partaking in the official parade of the samba schools in Rio de Janeiro. Resulting from a partnership between UNHCR and G.R.E.S. Acadêmicos do Salgueiro, 20 refugees from five nationalities paraded in Sapucai in April and now had their experiences shared in the global pre-launch of the documentary “Resistance – The Refugee Journey at Rio Carnival”, held on 29 June. Produced by UNHCR and RecDesign, the documentary follows five of the refugees who paraded and reveals the process of integration of these people into the communities that welcomed them through samba, singing, experiencing, and above all, contributing to the largest cultural manifestation in Brazil. Later this year, the documentary will be presented in international festivals to reach a wider public.

UNHCR before and after Operação Acolhida

On 22 June, UNHCR celebrated four decades of presence in Brazil in the city that hosted its first office, Rio de Janeiro. In such location, and within the framework of World Refugee Day, occurred the launch event of the book “UNHCR before and after Operação Acolhida - An analysis in the light of the Brazilian humanitarian response”, which provides an opportunity to reflect on how UNHCR has changed in the last five years while supporting the humanitarian response in the country. Made with the assistance of Doctor João Carlos Jarochinski Silva, the publication not only reminds the steps taken but also serves to guide future efforts, continuing strengthening inclusive processes in the country and responding efficiently to the demands of the refugee population. In this context, UNHCR also signed a Memorandum of Understanding with Museu do Amanhã through its managing entity – Instituto de Desenvolvimento e Gestão (IDG) – to promote joint actions on forced displacement, including on people affected by climate change. Furthermore, during the event, the Representative, Jose Egas, also signed a donation term with the Municipal Secretariat for Policies and Promotion for Women of five laptops that will be used for the Mulheres.Tech web programming course aimed at refugees, migrants, and Brazilians.
Exactly 40 years ago, UNHCR opened its first office in Brazil with the support and within the premises of Cáritas Arquidiocesana of Rio de Janeiro. In these four decades, our operation has changed significantly. The small office in Rio de Janeiro no longer exists, and the small team now has almost 200 employees spread across six offices nationwide. Our partner organizations within civil society now account for more than 20. Our collaboration with academia, through the Sérgio Vieira de Mello Chair, now includes 35 universities in all five regions of the country. Our work with authorities, based on inter-ministerial collaboration at the federal level and with state and municipal governments across the country, is also being strengthened. And support from the private sector, host community and donors, whether individuals, businesses or governments, grows every day.

In this period, the reality of asylum in the country also changed. In recent years, the country has received a greater diversity and a greater number of refugees who arrived here in the most varied conditions: in small numbers, individually, or in significant groups, as it has been the case of the Colombian, Angolan, Haitian, Senegalese, Afghan, Ukrainian and Venezuelan populations.

What has not changed is the generosity of Brazil and its population in welcoming those who need protection. Currently, the presence of refugees in the country is no longer a distant reality. And Brazil continues to exercise regional and global leadership in effectively responding to the needs of these people.

Operation Welcome, which since 2018 has protected vulnerable refugees and migrants from Venezuela, is one of the most emblematic models worldwide, as it ensures documentation, humanitarian assistance, shelter, interiorization and socio-economic integration of this population in the country. It is complemented by the active participation of all sectors of the community in the welcoming, visibility, and reception of refugees, demonstrating how it is possible to involve the whole of society in a humanitarian response, in line with the principles advocated by the Global Compact on Refugees.

This year, Brazil also celebrates the 25th anniversary of the Refugee Law, which establishes a legal framework for welcoming those who need international protection in the country. Combined with the 2017 Migration Law, both ensure access to rights and services for a population that wants and needs to restart their lives and be active agents in society after a process of real socioeconomic integration.

However, this year, unfortunately, we broke a new record in forced displacement worldwide: there are already more than 100 million people forced to leave their homes due to wars, conflicts, and human rights violations. This record must motivate a reflection on the need to prevent and resolve conflicts so that peace becomes the true solution to current humanitarian crises. And, within the framework of World Refugee Day (20 June), we as a society must celebrate the resilience, resistance and strength of people who are compelled to move, and reinforce systems of protection and assistance for this population.

As I conclude my four years as UNHCR Representative in Brazil, I am honored to be part of this process. Nothing could be achieved without the teamwork and dedication of UNHCR’s colleagues who accompanied me on this journey. Or without you: partners, authorities, donors, and friends. We have a long way to go, but I believe that together we can and will continue to make a difference and ensure the reception, access to rights and integration of refugees in the country.

Thanking you once more, I say goodbye with an anticipated saudade in my heart.

Jose Egas
UNHCR Representative in Brazil
“Whoever, wherever, whenever: everyone has the right to seek safety”: this is the motto of 2022 World Refugee Day. To celebrate this day and make thousands of people aware of its importance, UNHCR carried out a series of activities throughout Brazil, including:

UNHCR promoted a stand at the Saint John’s Day (Festa Junina, in Portuguese) in Boa Vista, considered the largest in the Amazon region. On the occasion, an activity for raising awareness on refugee needs and thanking the population of Roraima was carried out, in which it was possible to take pictures with message boards supporting the reception of refugees, in addition to being able to buy handicrafts and manual works produced by them.

With more than 80 participants from public organizations and civil society, UNHCR and the Secretariat for Women, Social Assistance and Citizenship (SEMASC) held a seminar in Manaus that went far beyond celebrating World Refugee Day. The event was the stage for a rich discussion on the elaboration of the Municipal Policy for Refugees and Migrants, an essential instrument for guaranteeing the rights of this population.

At the Warotuma a Tuaranoko shelter, the largest shelter for indigenous people in Latin America, the celebration was twice as lively, as World Refugee Day coincided with the shelter’s 100-day anniversary. The site, which has characteristics that meet the specificities of the indigenous population, had a series of festive activities for the sheltered population and a ceremony attended by representatives of UNHCR, the Humanitarian Logistics Task Force of Operation Welcome and AVSI.

In the Southeast, UNHCR supported Rio Refugia, a food, fashion, and art fair that celebrates the strength and resilience of refugees. In São Paulo, two libraries of ‘Mi Casa, Tu Casa’ – an initiative by JOCA newspaper, with support from UNHCR and Hands On Human Rights - were inaugurated: one in the Caemi-Palotinas reception center (located in the Penha neighborhood and managed by the Municipality of São Paulo) and another at the Aldeias Infantis SOS reception center (in Interlagos) to help refugees familiarize themselves with the Portuguese language and increase their opportunities for integration. Additionally, during the Santos F.C. men’s and women’s soccer match, a video was shown featuring UNHCR and its work in protecting refugees for the 10,000 fans present at the stadium.

Between 27 June and 1 July, the in-person closing events of the Brasilia Chapter of the Quito Process were held, divided into two stages. At first, a delegation made up of States members of the Process, Group of Friends, and representatives of the Joint Technical Secretariat between UNHCR and IOM visited Boa Vista to learn about the work of Operation Welcome. Then, the VIII International Technical Meeting on Human Mobility of Venezuelan Citizens in the Region took place, at the Itamaraty Palace, for the reading and signing of the Joint Declaration, which brings together the commitments assumed by the countries in the advancement of their humanitarian responses in welcoming refugees.

Updated data on the Refugee Population in Brazil

The Ministry of Justice, with the support of UNHCR and OBMigra, released updated data on the refugee population in Brazil through the "Refúgio em Números" report, referring to asylum requests and recognitions for the year 2021, and the new interactive dashboard that compiles data related to decisions with and without merit analysis made by the Brazilian State from 1985 to 2021.

Furthermore, in June, UNHCR published the 2021 Global Trends Report, which provides a deeper understanding of ongoing forced displacement crises, examining the needs of refugees, asylum seekers and stateless persons worldwide.

Among the published data are:

- By December 2021
  - 60,011 people recognized as refugees in Brazil
  - 81.30% are of Venezuelan nationality

- In Brazil, in 2021
  - 29,107 people requested recognition of refugee status
  - 53.7% male
  - 46.3% female
